

Organic & Conventional Coconut Products for Private Label

Coconuts are a way of life for millions of people mainly native to Southeast Asia and tropical climates around the world, where they have been cultivated and used in food for centuries. Known as the "tree of life," the wonderful fruit of the coconut palm is rich in specific fats that have incredible health benefits. The Coconut is a fruit consumed in a number of forms, water, raw and oil. Coconut is a simple dry nut, formed of a number of layers. The outermost is the brown husk, formed of fibers called coir, while the second one is an inner stone. As you remove the second layer, which covers the white and fleshy edible part of fruit, you will find inside the coconut water.

Our coconut plantations are in South East Asia and grow in their natural environment without application of artificial manure, vegetable poisons and genetic manipulation. The only enrichment used in trenching are the leaves of the coconut palms. The tropical precipitation and soil rich in minerals guarantee healthy growth of coconut palms and their tender fragrance. When the coconut reaches the optimal ripeness they are harvested by hand and immediately processed. The production, packaging and transportation of our products are handled in a sustainable and ethical way. We ensure that everyone involved in the value chain receives fair treatment. This philosophy has in turn, benefited us and helped guarantee and maintain the high quality of all our products. We are dedicated to supplying our customers with products of the highest quality and that means providing the best that nature has to offer. Our Organic products are produced only from carefully selected certified organic plantations. The Coconut plantations are controlled and certified by Control Union. Every part of the coconut is used to support the farmers to maximize their revenues. The production facility is equipped with the most modern machinery, needed for cautious processing of products.

Our coconut products are offered as Organic & Conventional for Private Label.

Organic & Conventional Coconut Water

Our Organic coconut water is derived from the young King Coconut which is orange in color and sweeter than the young green coconut. We offer our conventional coconut water from the young green coconuts.

Coconut Water or Juice is the liquid found inside the fresh coconut. It is processed using the latest technology to preserve the refreshing quality and flavor of natural coconut water. This thirst-quenching liquid can be used as a juice base for beverage when mixed with the other fruit flavors. It is 100% natural and offers a naturally isotonic beverage, rich in many valuable nutrients for the body. It contains more potassium than commercially sold isotonic sports drinks. These properties make it ideal for rehydration and restoring electrolytes and other nutrients after any form of physical exertion. For these reasons, it is a highly popular drink amongst many athletes.

Packaging: Bulk 200 liter food drums, canned 180ml with easy open end, Glass bottles with lug caps 250ml and 350ml.
